Miss CHRISTABEL PANKHURST, daughter of the courageous suffragette, Emmeline Pankhurst, says she will live to see the second coming of Christ. It will not be at the world's end, but there will be no doubt about it. He will not come "in poverty, weakness and humility, but in all His majesty with demonstrations of divine power more miraculous than any of the miracles of modern science."

First, it occurs to you that anything more miraculous than modern science would be very miraculous.

Second, you feel quite sure that if Christ came to earth now, preaching as He preached 1,900 years ago immigration authorities of the United States would keep Him out and advise Him to go to Russia. He told the rich man to divide his wealth among those that had nothing.

HUNT REVEALS NO TRACE OF 3 MISSING FLIERS

Hope Abandoned for Two; Quest for Glenn Brophy Continues.

SHIPS, PLANES IN SEARCH

27,000 Square Miles of Sea Scoured Without Results.

By The Associated Press

MANILA, March 20—While hope was virtually abandoned for two American fliers believed to have plunged to their deaths off Mindanao island, three governments joined today in a search for another pilot unreported since he took off from Macao, China, early yesterday on a 600-mile flight across the China sea to Manila.

Glenn W. Brophy, Los Angeles aviator, left Macao at 8:15 a. m., yesterday. He was to have arrived at Manila yesterday afternoon. Today he was sought by airplanes, fast United States warships and Philippine and Portuguese officials.

The destroyers John D. Edwards, John D. Ford, Smith Thompson and Whipple were ordered out of Manila to join the hunt for Brophy and the airplane tender Avocet left Olongapo for Cape Bolinao early this morning.

Eleven Planes in Search

Six naval planes took off from Olongapo at daylight and five from Manila joined in the search a few hours later

Up to 5:30 p. m. today (Philippine time) the navy forces had scanned about 27,000 square miles of sea without finding a trace of Brophy.

F. A. Diekhoff of San Francisco, and William Scott of Manila, generally were regarded as dead. A pontoon of Diekhoff's hydroairplane was found in the ocean off the bleak eastern coast of Mindanao last Saturday. No other

Canal Would Put City on Huge Traffic Route

Visions Portsmouth-Sandusky Waterway as Gigantic to Development of Natural Resources of Central and Southern Ohio and Southern States.

Editor's Note: This is the first of a series of articles dealing with the proposed Sandusky canal to be discussed in The Star this week. The articles have been prepared from information supplied by Leland G. Curtis, an engineer. In this article Curtis deals with the canal as a boon to the development of natural resources in the territory through which it would pass.

* * *

The advantages of having the proposed Lake Erie-Ohio river canal built over a route joining Sandusky on the lake are cited by engineers who have surveyed the route and others.

Leland G. Curtis, engineer, says the increased facilities for transportation, over a route like the Portsmouth-Sandusky canal which passes through Marion

Aid to Iron District

This route offers facilities for moving Lake Superior ore, as well as coking stone from the district near Marion, to the fast growing iron and steel industries in the Ironton and Hanging Rock territory. It affords also a direct water route to the Ohio coal from eastern Kentucky and southeastern West Virginia and including the great Kanawha fields.

Account must be taken of the unused natural resources as a measure of possible future development the proposed route through Marion also has advantages over the other most popular route, joining Pittsburgh, Pa., and Ashtabula, O. This prospective commerce, it is believed, would develop from the deposits of coal, fluxing stone, and high grade refractory clays of the territory. The West Virginia and Kentucky coal fields have had less coal taken from them and have greater unused reserves than even the Pittsburgh fields.

At the same time, there is no great consuming center like Pittsburgh to decrease the surplus available for export.

Cites Figures

A study of the tonnage reports on all manner of freight indicates that there are about 10,000,000 tons actually moving to or from places in the zone of the proposed route through Marion county or tributary to it, for which the waterway may be regarded as a competitor.

An estimate of this tonnage and of possible freight savings by transportation on the canal has been prepared, showing that savings in transportation costs the canal would make possible would aggregate nearly $4,000,000 a year.

The estimate showing possible transportation savings include the annual saving of $1,600,000 on the transportation of 2,000,000 tons of ore from the lakes to the Ironton district, and the shipping of 2,000,000 tons of coal from the Portsmouth district to the lakes. Estimated savings of $900,000 would be made possible on the shipping of 1,000,000 tons of stone to the Ironton district, and the handling of coal from mines to Ohio markets. Savings on the handling of other commodities with an estimated annual tonnage of 3,000,000 tons, are estimated to aggregate $1,500,000

Mrs. Hoover Goes Camping In Blue Ridge Mountains

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 20—Springing another of her surprises, Mrs. Herbert Hoover last night camped in Blue Ridge mountain snows while the President sped south to warmer climes.

With Mrs. Hoover was Mrs. Ray Lyman Wilbur, whose husband, the interior secretary, is on his way to smooth southern waters with the President.

Mountaineers by choice on both coasts and all possible occasions, Mrs. Hoover and Mrs. Wilbur had as the third member of their party Miss Susan Dyer, also formerly of Palo Alto, Calif.

Supplied with plenty of provender, secret service men to guard them, and a retinue of servants to start household wheels stilled through the winter months, the trio opened cabinet camp, near Orange, Va., furnished late last summer under Mrs. Wilbur's direction.

Spring was expected to arrive officially Saturday, and Mrs. Hoover was prepared to welcome it in the outdoors that she loves.

To the Rapidan she has turned for rest through two years in the White House—brief snatches, usually but several weeks with her sick son, and several weeks again when she sprained her back. Her son Herbert's health has been mending so rapidly Peggy Ann and Peter were allowed to go to Asheville for a visit with him. Her husband went sailing away to island possessions. Baby Joan not quite a year old was on such good behavior the nurse and other White House adults of baby-tending experience could care for her nicely.

And Mrs. Hoover was free for a few days of her own choosing, the Rapidan of course.

Ohio Boy is Strongest
"MY son, Lawrence, suffered with his stomach and bowels until he was quite listless and weak," says Mrs. L. H. Fieth, 1448 East 88th St., Cleveland.
"Now it's a different story as you can see from his picture. He's strong and full of life. I give California Fig Syrup a lot of credit for his condition. It increased his appetite, helped him wonderfully. Since then I have used California Fig Syrup myself with benefit as a laxative."
To show how California Fig Syrup acts to build up and strengthen half-sick, headachy, constipated children through giving tone and strength to weak stomach and bowels, nothing could be more convincing than praise like this.
Your doctor will approve the use of this pure vegetable product—as often as an impure breath, coated tongue, listlessness, feverishness or lack of appetite warn of constipation—or to keep bowels from clogging during colds or children's diseases.
When buying, look for the word California on carton and bottle. That marks the genuine.

Fatal Confession

"Look at here, you," continued [illegible] "Suppose you cut out [illegible] stuff—before we do [illegible] a little against our in[illegible] Since you've seen the pa[illegible] know the game's up."

[illegible] not, Simon? Well, now, [illegible] one is to misjudge people! [illegible] have thought that was ex[illegible] what you were. And so my [illegible] is up is it? And why do you [illegible] that?"

"Obviously. Surely? . . . We don't suppose that even you are going to be up here, while an innocent man swings for what you did. Little as we like you, we do you that much credit."

"You flatter me, Simon."

"I hope not. I hope I don't misjudge you."

"Well, sorry as I am to seem unworthy of your good opinion, Simon; sad as I am to disappoint you—I am not going."

"Not going to give yourself up? . . . You'd let an innocent man swing for you?"

"He's not swinging yet, anyway, Simon."

"No, but he will—unless the poor devil has got a fool-proof alibi. The dicks must have pinched the first crook that answered the description in the letter you left on Spider Schlitz's body."

"A low-down, dirty trick," growled Mr. James indignantly.

"Sickenin' swine," murmured Nurse Jones, while the fingers of the matron's right hand curled in the manner of the claws of a cat about to scratch.

"Oh, I don't know," observed Dr. MacAdoo tolerantly. "Quite legitimate, I think, so long as he owns up—as of course he will do—now that some one else is arrested. Quite a good trick for putting the police off the scent . . ."

"Tastes differ," sneered the doctor. "Not the sort of trick that appeals to me. Filthy . . . low . . . unspeakably foul . . ."

"I suppose you don't deny you wrote it?" he added, turning to John Waye.

"Certainly, I wrote it. I wrote it, all right. And, what's more, Simon, I gave an actual name—the real name of a real man, here in England. Apparently the police have suppressed it . . ."

With an oath Mr. James sprang to his feet—his restraint vanquished at the bare thought of such ineffable villainy, such incredible violation of all fair and decent dealing between honorable crooks.

The doctor himself seized Mr. James' wrist as, with a flash of blued steel, it appeared from beneath his coat.

"Sit down, you simp!" he hissed, and violently thrust Mr. James back in his chair. "Will you leave this to me? Who asked you to butt-in? D'you want us all to . . .?"

"Have it your own way," growled Mr. James . . . "Bump him off, and done with it, I say."

John Waye smiled at the doctor, and nodded in complacent confirmation.

"Yes, the description, name, and probable address, of an actual man," he said shamelessly.

His hearers stared in silence, genuinely shocked to the depths of their souls.

The man was a monster. Something beyond their ken and comprehension—a superhuman, or subhuman villain.

"And you actually propose to let him hang, while you look on in safety?" asked the doctor incredulously. "A perfectly innocent man!"

John Waye blew a long slow cloud of cigaret smoke and watched it mount up toward the carved-oak ceiling.

"I don't think perfectly innocent men often get hanged in this country," he observed conversationally.

"Well, and what sort of a time do you think he's having, lying there while they weave the noose round him?"

"Most uncomfortable, I should think."

"Well, then, don't you think it's up to you? . . . Aren't you going to do something?"

"Not a thing . . . What would you do in my place, doctor?"

The doctor picked up his heavy ebony ruler in both hands, and that it neither bent or broke seemed incredible.

"Look here," he said in a low and menacing voice, as he pointed it straight at the face of John Waye, "I'll tell you what I'd do, and I'll tell you what you're going to do, unless you're lower than a snake's belly . . What you are going to do, in any case.

"For some reason of your own, you bumped off Spider Schlitz; and when you'd done it, you wrote a note for the police, to put them on the track of another man; and the police, saying the usual thing—that they'd got a clew and hoped to make an arrest at an early date—framed the man whom you described and named . . . Sort of thing they would do . . . Now, then, why can't you be white enough to say, 'The game's up. I've had a run for my money, and this is where I get off? . . . You've had a square deal here; now give this other guy a square deal—and us as well. Go to the police and take your medicine like a man, and don't squeal about us. We've treated you square . . . Now go and give yourself up, and take what's coming to you with your mouth shut."

"That's what you'd do, eh, Simon?"

"Certainly."

"And what about the case of poor young Swipe Gorman—eh, Simon? Young Gorman who went innocent to 'the chair'—for a murder you planned and Gunman Gryde committed. Who put Snip Casey 'on the spot,' for Gryde to shoot, and then sat quiet and saw poor innocent young Gorman electrocuted for it?"

The doctor sprang to his feet with an oath.

"You—!"

"Sit down, Simon. Sit down," soothed John Waye coolly.

The doctor did so, his face less inscrutable than usual. He licked his lips, and appeared to swallow something.

"No." John Waye glanced at each member of his audience in turn. "No," he said. "I shan't give myself up . . . Not if they return a true bill . . . Not if judge and jury find him guilty . . . Not if he gets the death sentence . . .

"No, nor yet on the third Sunday morning after his sentence—nor at five minutes to eight on the happy morn," he continued. "Let him swing. I hope he does swing—and then I shall be all right . . See, Simon? The day he swings, I'll start packing up, and then I'll go on my way rejoicing."

"No, I shan't give myself up," repeated John Waye; "but," he added, smiling round, "I would not force any of your tender consciences. Far be it from me to do that: If I can let an innocent man hang, and you can't, why—you must give me up.

"Purge your consciences, you scrupulous ones. Be guided by your better natures and follow the counsel of your heart; yes, for is it not written, 'Let the counsel of thine own heart stand, for there is no man truer unto thee than it?'"

"My God!" Mr. James ejaculated, aghast, and further words failed him.

To Be Continued.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

It was another bright and bammy day when me and Jubilee woke up, and I was thinking about having to stay in the house and away from school till Banty got well, and then I got to thinking that tomorrow is Saturday, and that wasn't so good. No fella wants to stay in the house and take care of his kid sister on Saturday, and then I thought that if I couldn't go to Sunday school maybe my ant wouldn't wash me Sunday morning, and that would be all right with me. Then I got out of bed and took my pillow out of the window my unkle busted with his head, and went out in the hall and let Jubilee down out of the other window, and then I put on my short pants and went down to get the pail and milk the cows, and when I got out to the barn none of the bunch was there, and none came while I was milking, because they all had to stay home or get arrested or something, and when I went in the house everyone looked at me like I didn't belong, and my mother told me to keep away from Annabelle Lee, and when I sot down to eat my father sated me if I reelized that maybe on my account he would have to stay home from work and lose a lot of time and money, and I was asting him if he would make me a kite whilst he had to stay home, and just then the telephone bell rang and my ant jumped up and answered it. She is always first to get to the foam. She thinks a young man will foam her some time, but none ever does, and when she had held her ear folded around the foam a while she turned around and grinned and told us that the doctors had decided that Banty ain't got anything catching, the dirty crook, and that I could go to school. So then everybody but me was happy, and I was kinda happy because of tomorrow.

My unkle got up and said he was going to town, and my mother said he had better keep away from town or someone would be offering him a job. Then the whole bunch came stringing in and hollering "Yoo-hoo," and I went outside and we were going to school, and we went around by Banty's window again, and the girls went with us, and the window was open and he was in bed, and he raised up his head like a mud turkle, and Younius said, "I hear you ain't got the scarlet fever?" and he said, "That's all you know about it. You ought to see where my mother landed on me when she found me standing on my head yesterday." I'm glad he didn't show us.

His mother came in then and slammed the window down, and all of us went to school. We was all thinking about where Banty got the scarlet fever, so we talked about what we are going to do tomorrow all the way to school. If Banty is out we are going to throw him in the creek for letting us down. We had yesterday's lessons to make up, and had to stay in at recess to do it. We'll fix him.

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Madge, Entering Mary's Room, Runs Into a Storm.

"I HAVE my card from the Baby-Tenders Union in my pocket," Harry Underwood drawled when in answer to his query as to whether there was no one who could bring Mary to reason I said that I would try my luck with her if someone would keep watch of the baby. "But what's happened to our dear friend, the Kat? I never knew her to be off watch before when she had a 'dooty' to perform and a patient or a baby to watch. I've always had the general impression that when she sleeps she has a clinical thermometer tucked behind her right ear, a temperature chart pinned to her gown and holds in either shapely hand an ice pack and a hot water bottle."

Lillian laughed with me at his nonsense, but her eyes as they met mine, were keen with concerned inquiry, and it was her eyes I answered rather than her husband's gibing.

"She had a letter which upset her, and she's gone to my room for a little," I said while my eyes involuntarily went to the letter from Hal Meredith which still lay unopened upon the table.

Lillian's eyes followed mine and her lips formed the silent query, "That one?" I shook my head, and her husband suddenly chuckled, while I flushed, and Lillian's lips for a fleeting instant formed a thin line, the only sign she ever gives of embarrassment. I had forgotten, and I knew she had, that her husband was a lip reader par excellence.

"Not that one?" he said, pointing to it as a rude child might. "Well! now, that's kind of odd. Without my glasses I can see that the postmark on that comes from a country which holds a man who writes a letter which in my judgment would upset our dear Katrina more than another."

"I'm afraid this is one of the times when you're 'mistook' in your judgments, Mr. Disko Troop the Second," I told him. "If you'll use your eyes a little more, you'll see that the letter on the table hasn't even been opened."

"That's the reason it's upsetting her," he retorted imperturbably. "She probably doesn't dare to."

"Ruby-Pearl-Opal-Violca"

"Please, bring him to order, Lillian," I begged, as I rose to go to Mary's room. "He's getting impossible lately. You let him run wild too much up in the Berkshire hills. Do not let him get too near the baby. He'll have a bad influence over her."

"Ruby-Pearl-Opal-Violet doesn't care what kind of influence I exert," he said, mouthing with gusto every syllable of the fantastic names Roderick and Junior wished to call the baby. "She's got more sense in her little noodle this second than all the mothers and grandmothers and pseudo aunts in the country put together, and she has warm passions for me. I can see it in her eyes when she laughs up at me."

"Also colic," Lillian said witheringly, but I did not hear his reply, for I was already around the corner and headed toward Mary's room.

I expected to find her in bed, Marion had said that she still was there, but as I paused outside her door I heard sounds which I recognized. Since Mary has been a small child she has thrown her shoes across the room when she is angry, and I realized that she was doing it now. There were other sounds also—tramping up and down—I guessed in moccasins, for the militantly marching footfalls were muffled and muttered exclamations gradually crescendo.

At my knock the sounds suddenly ceased, but when Mary, with face flashing storm signals, opened the door and saw that it was I, she choked and then began to speak hurriedly, with excitement that appeared to be mounting by leaps.

"Oh, I'm glad that it's you, Auntie Madge," she said. "I thought it was Marion coming back, and I don't want to let her know anything about this, it would only put ideas in the kid's head. But with you I can spill over, you're always so comfy and understanding."

Mary "Spills Over"

But she flung away from the hand I put upon her arm, and I saw that she wanted no sympathy, only the chance to "spill over."

She was pacing the floor again, and I carefully pulled a chair into a corner and sat down, knowing by experience that there was nothing to be done with her until her temper fit had worn itself out.

She had forgotten me almost as soon as I entered and the astonishing words which came from her pretty lips were addressed apparently to the empty air.

"That long-legged, knock-kneed, skinny imitation vamp! Just wait until I get hold of her. I'll mess those mascara eyebrows all over her face. 'I'll teach her to let my boy friend alone."

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

"Sunk!"

The girl who lets periodic pains interfere with her activities has not heard of Midol. These wonderful little tablets act quite harmlessly, directly on the organs affected. They do not interfere with nature, but they do remove every particle of that unnatural, unnecessary pain.

Midol will end the most severe monthly pain in five to seven minutes.

Midol is a marvelous discovery made by specialists. It is not a narcotic, yet it ends all that needless pain. And if you anticipate the time, the expected pain will not appear at all. Tiny tablets in convenient little metal case obtainable at every drugstore. Isn't it folly to suffer month after month? Many have found Midol the quickest relief for headaches, neuralgia, neuritis, and other pain.—Adv.

HOUSE PASSES NEW AUTO BILL

Would Require Ohio Motorists To Hold Additional Proof of Ownership.

By The Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., March 20—Ohio motorists would be required to obtain a certificate of title as well as the present bill of sale under a bill passed by the house before the legislature recessed yesterday for the week-end.

The measure, sponsored by Representative William R. Pringle, Republican of Cleveland, now goes to the senate. The certificate would show mortgages and liens on the automobile, thus curbing the sale of cars by persons not actually holding title.

One copy of the certificate would be filed with the county clerk, another with the state commissioner of vehicles and a third with the owner or lien-holder. The bill, designed to create uniformity in the handling of motor car titles, provides penalties of six months to five years imprisonment and fines of from $500 to $5,000 for violation of any of its provisions.

Other bills passed by the house included one by Julius W. Headington, Democrat of Mt. Vernon, to appropriate $54,000 to pay adjusted compensation to war veterans who failed to take advantage of previous allowances and to terminate operation of the state compensation act by the end of 1932

CALL OF THE WILD

This modern Miss prefers the jungles of British East Africa to the social round of debutante existence. She is Miss Diana Guest, daughter of the Hon. and Mrs. Frederick Guest of New York and Palm Beach, Fla. Instead of spending the winter in Florida like so many of her acquaintances, Miss Guest is on an exploration tour with her father.

The Stars Say—

For Saturday, March 21

THE lunar transits bearing rule over the activities of this day point to adverse and hostile situations difficult to circumvent. There is peril and danger to business interests as well as to personal safety, with threat of underhand attack or subtle machinations as well as delays and disappointments generally. It would be wise under such stellar conflict to remain quiet and aloof until the astral influences change to supporting positions.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year calling for very quiet, self-contained and cautious behavior, as there are hazards to business, personal integrity and physical well-being. There are hints of subtle as well as open hostility, with duplicity, malice and even violence. Shun quarrels and keep quiet. A child born on this day may require early training and discipline to keep in control a violent and impassioned temperament, with some erratic, subtle and vindictive tendencies. The sooner self-restraint and nobility of character are inculcated the better.

A Hamburg, Wis., farm contributed 11,000 of the 27,000 pelts sold in the New York market during January, Banzhaf said. Since the 1929 "boom," when $810 was the record price for a single pelt, prices have averaged about $150.

KIWANIANS SPONSOR CAMP NEAR KENTON

Special to The Star.

KENTON, March 20—A huge boy scout camp for all Northwestern Ohio, which bids fair to be the largest in the state within two years' time, appeared to be a reality today with the signing of a ten-year lease of the north shore of Lake Idlewild by officers of the Kenton Kiwanis club and two of the owners of the lake property, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Pfeiffer.

Names of the other owners are expected to be affixed to the document within the next few days.

The owners of the lake property are receiving a cash consideration of one dollar, and the lease calls for the maintenance and equipment of the north shore of the lake for scout camp purposes by the Kenton Kiwanis club and other Kiwanis clubs of Northwestern Ohio which will use the site.

Clubs To Pay

Under the plans tentatively mapped out by a Kiwanis committee of which Charles Price is chairman, each Kiwanis club in the district will underwrite the expenses of the scouts in their respective communities during the time the scouts are in camp.

The plan is expected to receive the whole-hearted cooperation of the entire district of Kiwanis.

REPORT FIRES IN BUSINESS PLACES

Early Arrival of Firemen Averts Serious Damages in Upper Sandusky.

Special to The Star.

UPPER SANDUSKY, March 20—Timely discovery averted two possible disastrous fires in the business district here yesterday. Late yesterday afternoon the local fire department answered a call from the Billharz Drug store when some papers stored too close to a hot-water heater in the basement became ignited. The fire was extinguished without much damage. The store is located in the center of a three story brick building on South Sandusky avenue.

Just before midnight the fire department was called to fight a fire which had started in the Liebenthal Shoe Repair shop. It is thought it started from an overheated stove and defective flue. The fire and water did several hundred dollars damage before it was extinguished. The building is a story and a half frame structure located on East Wyandot avenue and is owned by Fred Stuckey.

FREE MEMBERSHIPS OFFERED BY Y.M.C.A.

Unemployed Young Men To Be Given Privileges of Organization.

Marion's unemployed young men will be offered full privileges of a senior membership at the Y. M. C. A. as long as they are out of work, according to Earl N. Hale, general secretary of the local Y.

The purpose of the offer is to keep the youth of Marion occupied and to keep their minds busy besides thinking of the fact that they are out of work, Hale desires that the boys of Marion make the Y their headquarters.

The use of gymnasium, swimming pool, handball courts, showers, social privileges and anything that a regular member of the Y has the privilege to use will be open to those accepting Hale's offer. At the time of the boys registration Hale said that he would talk to the boys and find out the ideas of a vocation and if possible try and influence them in this line and place them in a position.

The plan of offering free memberships to the unoccupied has spread rapidly throughout Ohio and many young men of the state have already been benefited by this plan, Hale says. The plan has been adopted by the State Y. M. C. A. and approved of by the local board of directors at a meeting Tuesday night at the Y. M. C. A.

Don't Expect Soap Alone to Give Dish Washing Results...

New water-softening cleanser is almost magic in action—with local hard water and ¼ usual amount of soap. ½ the time.

A NEW discovery—not a soap, but a water-softening cleanser—makes any soap more effective by changing hard water to soft. It enables you to cut dish washing time in half. And you need use only one-fourth the usual amount of soap.

Women now find that greasy film on dishes has been eliminated and greasy scum is no longer left in the dishpan—in spite of this city's hard water.

What It Is

It is a preparation called Climalene that you add to your washing water. Just a teaspoon or two.

Instantly, it takes all the harshness out of that water. Makes it soft as rain water.

At the same time, due to certain bland cleansing agents, it instantly DISSOLVES all dirt, stains and grime.

Use the soap or soap flakes you ordinarily do. Then see for yourself the amazing results. During 1930 women used over 33,000,000 packages of Climalene for washing, for cleaning and in the dishpan.

Laboratory Proved

To assure results to you, we buy fine things, lingerie and delicate fabrics, costly china. Then by repeated washings, try to spoil or fade them.

Consider, please, what those things mean to you. Consider, too, that the minute you put this creation into water, all harshness is taken away—your hands protected from roughness, made soft, smooth and white. Then try it.

Remember the name—Climalene. Your grocer has it in 10c and 25c packages. THE CLIMALENE CO., CANTON, O. 172-RA

MAKE A 30 DAY TEST

Economy in buying at any particular store cannot be fairly judged by merely comparing the cost of a number of single items. A fair comparison can only be made by comparing your total bill over a period of time.

We suggest that you buy all your groceries for a thirty-day period of time from a Serv-U-Wel Market and compare your bill for that period of time with that of any other store. Compare the excellent quality of foods and the fine service that you receive from a Serv-U-Wel Market as well as the reasonable prices.

WE ARE CONFIDENT THAT YOU WILL FIND A SERV-U-WEL MARKET THE MOST ECONOMICAL PLACE TO BUY YOUR FOODS

P. T. A. MEETS

Prospect Home-School Group Enjoys Kid Party.

PROSPECT, March 20—The P. T. A. met at the school house Wednesday afternoon. Ther progam opened with a piano solo by Mrs. Henry Stauffer. Reports on the P. T. A. conference held at Columbus were given by Mrs. H. J. Lodwig, Mrs. J. H. Woleslagel, Mrs. H. Stauffer and Mrs. E. A. Kimmel. It was voted to send $10 to the Pomeroy association to aid in the drouth disaster. A discussion on "Spiritual Training for Children" was conducted by Rev. Sara L. Stoner, Mrs. R. W. Herbster and H. C. Secriest.

Mrs. Paul Kyle and Miss Lucile Thomas sang a duet accompanied by Pauline Wyatt, violin and Mrs E. E. Wottring, piano. A St. Patrick's day idea was served during the social hour.

• • •

Miss Dorothy Benzler entertained the Home Economics club at her home Wednesday night. The party was in form of a "kid party". Games and contests were enjoyed. The refreshments were in keeping of St. Patrick's day.

NEW YORK—Examples of prehistoric platinum jewelry, which probably antidated Columbus by 1,000 years, have been brought here. Although primitive in design, its workmanship is remarkable, comparing favorably with that of ancient Egypt.

THE NEGLECTED DEBUTANTE

THE society columns referred to her as "one of last season's buds." Other girls her age married and set up homes. While she was left to face the future alone. Yet if she had only known in time. . . .

Too often, really charming girls allow poisons of constipation to take the bloom from their cheeks, to bring the pimples and wrinkles that age complexions.

Constipation is so much more prevalent among women, so much more difficult for them. What a pity when prevention is so easy. Simply eat a delicious cereal.

Two tablespoonfuls of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, eaten daily, are guaranteed to prevent and relieve both temporary and recurring constipation. In severe cases, use with each meal.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN sweeps the intestines clean of all poisonous wastes. How much better than taking habit-forming pills and drugs.

Serve Kellogg's ALL-BRAN with milk or cream, fruits or honey added. Use for making fluffy bran muffins, breads, omelets, etc. Look for the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

YANKS' CHANCES DEPEND ON SLUGGERS

HEAD OF AMERICAN LEAGUE THINKS NEW BALL WILL AID GAME

E. S. Barnard Issues Predictions on Pennant Race in Junior Baseball Circuit.

By The Associated Press

PENSACOLA, Fla., March 20—of E. S. Barnard, president of the the new rule governing sacrifice flies will bring batting averages down to where they should be, and the new regulation forbidding signing of sand lot ball players by the majors will help both the major and minor leagues, in the opinion The so-called lively ball is a myth, American league.

"The new ball that goes into use this season, will, in my opinion have little effect on the players' averages," Mr. Barnard said as he arrived here to watch the Boston Red Sox in spring training.

"The size and weight are the same, the only difference being that larger thread is used and the seams are therefore higher. This probably will permit the curve ball pitchers to get a better grip no the sphere, but nobody expects any difference in the style of play."

Speaking of the prospects for the coming American league season, Mr. Barnard said he had visited quite a few clubs and followed the fortunes of others.

"I fail to see where the Athletics, Yankees and Washington, top notchers of last year, have improved They haven't added any talent.

"On the other hand, the lower clubs have strengthened considerably. Cleveland has added several good pitchers. Detroit has a well balanced hurling staff. The White Sox have improved greatly and the same goes for the St. Louis Browns"

Sutter Only American Left in Doubles Play

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, March 20—Three Frenchmen and a lone American are involved in the doubles final of the national indoor tennis championships today while two more American stars are slated to clash in the semi-final of the singles for the right to tackle Jean Borotra, leader of the French cohorts, in tomorrow's singles final.

Only Clifford Sutter, young New Orleans player, is left to represent America in the doubles. With his French partner, Pierre Landry, he opposes Borotra and Christian Boussus of France for the championship. Yesterday Sutter and Landry were carried to five sets, three of them deuced, to beat William Aydelotte and Perrine Rockafellow, of New York. Borotra and Boussus won in three sets from Berkeley Bell of Dallas, Tex., and Merritt Cutler of New York.

Bowling Champ Will Roll Here

MRS. McCUTCHEON

LOCAL PIN DEVOTEES TO WITNESS CHAMP

Mrs. Floretta McCutcheon To Appear on Local Bowling Alleys Sunday.

Marion bowling enthusiasts will be accorded the opportunity Sunday afternoon and night to witness in action here what is billed as the world's champion woman pin smasher. Mrs. Floretta McCutcheon, claimant of the title will appear at the Recreation Bowling alleys in exhibition and instruction matches.

Mrs. McCutcheon boasts what is probably the time records for women's bowling. So far this season she has rolled an average score of 679 for three games in 200 cities. She has mauled the maples for perfect 300 scores on numerous occasions and consistently bowls better than 250 a game.

Mrs. McCutcheon will demonstrate to local women bowlers in special exhibition matches at 4:30 p. m. and 8:30 p. m. Sunday. Preceding her exhibitions Manager E. R. Kopp of the local alleys has arranged a match game between two picked teams of local women bowlers. Mrs. Charles Williams of the leading women bowlers and Lee Schuler, one of the leading men bowlers of the city will compete against Mrs. McCutcheon in three-game sets as part of the exhibition.

MANAGER M'CARTHY NOT INTERESTED IN DEFENSIVE BASEBALL

Counts on Base Hits To Produce Runs; Hurling Strength in Doubt.

By The Associated Press

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 20 In common with most of the other major league ball clubs, the New York Yankees are not interested in the movement to apply the brakes to the steam roller, power-plus type of games.

Joe McCarthy's men are slugging the new ball with old-fashioned vehemence and results. Marse Joe expects them to flatten as much of the opposition as possible with base hits, while he is tinkering with the pitching machinery to make it work. Babe Ruth, down to playing weight now is intent not only upon regaining the home run leadership he lost to Hack Wilson in 1930 but in cracking his own major league record of 60 circuit clouts.

The new ball and the new sacrifice fly rule may, over the season's stretch, cut down the batting averages but power, McCarthy believes still will play a dominating part.

Wants Base Hits

"Defensive baseball, whether it is in the box or in the field, continues to be an important factor in the success of any club," remarked McCarthy, "but can you show me any club in either league that is not trying to get more punch in its attack?

"The fellows coming up for the first time are swinging from the heels and you don't see any of these old-timers trying to become choke-hitters. Maybe we have had too much freak slugging.

"Our hitters will keep us in the race this year, just as the Athletics, much as they depend on Grove and Earnshaw, will count on the decisive damage being done by such hitters as Simmons, Foxx and Cochrane."

The trouble with the main cogs of the Yankee attack in recent seasons has been the tendency of one or more to have an off-year, due to injuries or a slump. Ruth and Combs skidded in 1928, Lou Gehrig had a bad season in 1929 and Tony Lazzeri fell off 51 points last year to a mere .303 at bat.

Stars Set To Go

If this big four can all hit the high spots this season, the team will have few, if any hitting worries. Lazzeri has been working hard and appears in splendid condition. Ruth's health and spirits are perfect. Gehrig, except for a mishap in being hit on the head with a thrown ball, has had nothing to interfere with his plans to duplicate or even better a .379 average for 1930.

Whether Sewell takes over the third base assignment or whether it goes to Lazzeri, with big Ben Chapman on second, the team will have additional punch down the batting order.

Bill Dickey contributed a .340 wallop when he does the backstopping.

"If we get the pitching, and I have every reason to expect we will, the Yankees will win a lot of ball games," concluded McCarthy, conservatively.

Tourney Entrants Poised for Cage Title Battles

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., March 20—The vast coliseum at the state fairground, idle since March 2, when Ohio State played its last basketball game, resounded again today with cheers of high school cage enthusiasts as 16 teams, the cream of more than 1,200 quintets in Ohio, prepared to start the ninth annual tournament to decide the interscholastic cage supremacy of the state.

All teams will see action in the first round today when the final gun sounds tonight. Title hopes of all except four in each class, will be blasted. These eight will resume the struggle tomorrow with the semi-final tilts in the afternoon and the final games in the evening, preceded by a foul shooting tournament.

Francis Bacon of Mt. Gilead, Dave Rees of Dayton, and R. W. Becthol of Toledo, will officiate at all games, the three man system being used to eliminate any chance of complaint. The large coliseum floor has been reduced from 96 to 75 feet for the touranment.

The schedule for the first round of games:

Class A

3:00 p. m.—Hamilton vs. Canton McKinley.

4:00 p. m.—Columbus Central vs. Lima Central.

8:30 p. m. Portsmouth vs. Toledo Waite.

9:30 p. m.—Zanesville vs. Akron West.

Class B

1:00 p. m.—McConnelsville vs. Bluffton.

2:00 p. m.—Stewart vs. Fitch.

6:30 p. m.—Newton Falls vs. West Milton.

7:30 p. m.—Toledo Wittmer vs Lancaster St. Mary.

PRESBYTERIANS, REFORMED WIN IN SEMI-FINALS OF Y TOURNEY

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK
Sports Editor, The Star

The finals in the Y-County cage tourney next Tuesday night will be strictly a Marion Sunday school affair as a result of the final scores in a pair of semi-final games last night on the Y court. First Reformed Sunday school eked out a two point 26-24 decision over the fast-stepping Green Camp five and the Martel Independents succumbed to the First Presbyterians 30-27.

Both of the games were little less than mininature wars. Sometimes it looked as though they would pass the miniature stage. Play fast and furious from start to finish with personal fouls numerous against all four teams.

First Reformed jumped into the lead over Green Camp at the start of the game but never piled up an advantage beyond striking distance of the Independent team.

G. C. Takes Lead

In the third period Green Camp started connecting with the hoop with greater consistency than in the first two periods with the result that Reformed soon lost its slim advantage and trailed the rural outfit. LeRoy Klingel, Reformed guard who had left the game at half-time was then brought back into the third frame fray and proceeded without delay to sink a mid-court shot to regain the lead for Reformed

Both teams battled furiously in the last period, the lead changing hands on several occasions. Green Camp deadlocked the count with a minute to play but Reformed slipped through for a two-pointer just before the game ended to erase the hopes of the rural team for victory.

Close for Presbies

Martel Independents gave the First Presbyterians a terrific battle before losing out in the last few minutes. A basket and a foul with less than a minute to play, broke a deadlock and kept unmarred the Presbies record for the season.

Martel drew first blood at the start of the game, but the Presbies soon evened matters. After Martel had taken a four point lead the winners opened a scoring drive that put them ahead 8-4 by the end of the first period. Martel could not cope with the scoring ability of the Sunday school five in the second period and fell further behind. The score at the half way point was 18-11.

Martel reversed the order of proceedings in the second half, decisively outplaying the Marion city team and bringing the count to a deadlock by the latter part of the final period.

The Presbyterians jerked the game out of the fire with less than a minute to play by dropping through a sucker shot and following it up with a successful shot from the charity stripe.

OXFORD, CAMBRIDGE IN HISTORIC RACE

English Sportsmen Center Attention on Traditional Rivalry of Annual Event.

By The Associated Press

PUTNEY-ON-THAMES, England, March 20—England's sportsmen put aside their daily tasks today and centered their attention on the traditional Oxford-Cambridge boat race up the Thames tomorrow.

On both sides of the river from Putney to Mortlake's brewery thousands will line the course and other thousands will pack trains pulled out on the bridges overhanging the four and one-quarter mile course.

Because of considerable jockeying for positions in the Cambridge eight, racing experts give Oxford a bit of an edge over their rivals despite the fact that the light blues have won seven consecutive victories in the annual series and lead, 41 to 40, in the 82 races rowed since 1829.

Oxford's crew remains virtually the same eight that stepped into the shell early in the season, while Cambridge coaches have altered men in positions and changed oarsmen in an effort to hit on a winning combination.

Jake Schaefer, world's 18.2 balkline billiards champion, may enter the three-cushion competition next season because of the inactivity in balkline play.

BEARS FORCED INTO RETREAT

Stocks Turn Upward and Numerous Shares Make Good Gains.

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 20—Bears were again forced into retreat in today's stock market, after taking advantage of dividend doubts to cause momentary unsettlement.

Persistent buying of selected issues went ahead despite sharp breaks in a few spots during the morning, and pivotal industrials were well supported. By early afternoon, shorts began to cover in the rails, and this group, which has recently weighed heavily on the market, turned upward.

A big gain in loans is not unusual over quarterly tax settlement dates, and a rather general conclusion was that traders borrowed against brokerage accounts to pay their taxes, that discount houses borrowed to carry blocks of the new government securities, and that loans called by sources not included in the tabulation were replaced from sources covered by the figures.

The drops in U. S. Industrial alcohol and National Cash Register looked like bar selling on the basis of expected divided actions Alcohol directors meet around April 1, and Wall street would not be surprised if the current $6 dividend rate is modified. National Cash register directors have already deferred action on the quarterly payment, pending return of the president from Europe.

Bulls insist, however, that the shrinkage of dividends at this time has been largely discounted, that it is a characteristic of the fag end of depression, and even of the early stages of recovery. The bond market overcame its recent sluggishness and developed a firm tone, which was reassuring. Credit continued in excessive supply, with call loans offered outside at 1 per cent.

GRAINS AGAIN DROP LOWER

Fresh Downturns Recorded on Chicago Market; Weather Aids Bears

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, March 20 — Fresh downturns in grain prices today accompanied announcements that British mills would hereafter refuse to accept United States federal inspection certificates on wheat purchases General rain and snow in Canada was an additional bearish factor. Opening ¼c off to ¼ up, wheat later showed other setbacks. Corn started ¼@¾ lower to ¼ higher and subsequently sagged all around

Under selling pressure wheat soon outdid the season's low price record Bears made much of the fact that Argentine, Australian and Russian wheat shipments this week totaled 11,179,000 bushels, 8,400,000 more than at the corresponding time last year. It was emphasized that the increase was practically all at the expense of Canada and the United States, and that North American export prospects remained poor.

Rain and snow making progress eastward in domestic winter wheat territory, supplemented the market effect of replenished moisture supplies in Canada. Primary receipts of wheat were again larger, 1,209,000 bushels compared with 925,000 a week ago and 391 000 a year ago. Corn primary receipts continued to exceed those of the previous week and year, but Chicago arrivals were relatively small, 105 cars. Oats were easy, sympathizing with wheat and corn. Provisions responded to a drop in hog values.

SIX AUTOS, TRUCK IN TRAFFIC MISHAPS

Three Accidents During Night Damage Machines Here.

Six automobiles and one truck were damaged in three traffic accidents in Marion last night. No one was injured.

A Studebaker crashed into a light delivery truck parked in front of the armory, jamming it into a Ford coupe parked at the curb. All three vehicles were damaged. The driver of the Studebaker drove away.

The truck had been parked in front of the armory by Roy Breese of Cheney avenue a few moments before the accident. Police say the coupe belongs to Bessie Wendling of 396 Park street.

An Erskin coach driven by E. G. Leffler of 517 Forest street and a Chevrolet coach driven by O. B. Lavette of 607 Grant street collided near the intersection of Mt. Vernon avenue and Greenwood street last night. Both cars were towed to the Haberman Chevrolet Co. for repairs.

Automobiles driven by J. A. Langnecker of Green Camp and J. A. Lee of Marion R. F. D. No. 7 collided at West Center street and Blaine avenue last night, police reported. Langnecker was driving a Buick sedan and Lee a Whippet sedan. Both cars were slightly damaged.

TRAFFIC TIED

Traffic on West Center street was tied up for more than half an hour yesterday at the C. & O. railroad crossing when a drawbar connecting freight cars broke. The caboose and several cars were left stranded on the crossing.

About the time one becomes reconciled to a double chin, it becomes a stringy one.

Theater News And Reviews

TARKINGTON PLAY AT OHIO THEATER

Booth Tarkington's widely read story of "Father's Son" has been put in the films without detracting from its entertaining and educational value, as a visit to the Ohio theater, where the play opened last night on a three-day run will prove.

Bill Emory (Leon Janney) is a regular kid, but his father wants him to ever be the perfect little gentleman. Bill, just as many other boys, finds this very difficult to do.

Lewis Stone and Irene Rich have touching parts as the father who could see no good in his son, and the sympathetic mother who tried to see life from Bill's point of view. Of course, the play ends the way you would want it to, but not until Bill's father has been made to see the boy's outlook on life.

Short subjects and a news reel complete the Ohio bill.

Defeat of Gerrymander Bill Is Looked for Here

Proposed Redistricting of Ohio Congressional Districts Gives Republicans Five-to-One Advantage Over Democrats; Would Add Two Counties to Eighth.

Local political observers are predicting defeat for the proposal to revise Ohio congressional districts in which the Republican party would be given a five-to-one advantage over Democrats in normal years.

The plan, submitted to the state senate elections committee by a sub-group directed to investigate and make recommendations, would add two counties—Union and Seneca—to the Eighth congressional district, now made up of Morrow, Marion, Hardin, Wyandot, Crawford and Hancock counties.

Would Change Districts

The proposed gerrymandering of the state congressional districts is planned to make possible the addition of two new congressmen allowed Ohio under the 1930 census. All the present 18 districts would be changed materially except the First and Second Cincinnati districts.

In normal years, according to analysts of the Associated Press, the redistricting plan would give the Republicans 20 and the Democrats four congressmen.

If reported out of the committee at hearing next Wednesday local observers said that there is a chance of it being passed in both the senate and the house. The bill will be considered publicly in Columbus Wednesday by the senate elections committee and the house federal relations committee at a joint meeting.

Veto Expected

If passed by the legislative groups there is no doubt in the minds of local men, both Republican and Democratic, that the bill would be doomed to a veto at the hands of Governor White. They consider it practically impossible for Republicans in both branches of the state legislature to obtain enough votes to pass the bill over the governor's veto.

Outside of making the district more strongly Republican, the proposed change in the Eighth district would mean little in the outcome of elections in normal years, officials of the board of elections here said.

There seems to be some variance in opinion as to the normal politics of the district. Two of the counties—Wyandot and Crawford—are listed as decidedly Democratic, while the remaining four usually can be relied upon to back the Republican candidates. Union county always has been solidly Republican, while in Seneca county there has been a gradual change of votes for many years until it is considered G. O. P. territory.

Other Districts

The state is allowed a congressman for each 250,000 population recorded in the 1930 census. The two new counties would add 67,133 to the district, bringing the total up to 249,462. Marion county, now the most populous in the district, would lose that distinction to Seneca county, with a population of 47,941. Union county has a population of 19,192.

In districts bordering the Eighth, the following counties would be included under the proposal before the senate committee:

Fourth—Darke, Shelby, Miami Logan, Champaign and Clark.

Fifth—Auglaize, Mercer, Allen, Van Wert, Putnam, Paulding, Henry, Defiance, Fulton and Williams.

Eleventh — Hocking, Fairfield, Perry, Licking, Delaware, Coshocton, Holmes and Knox.

Seventeenth—Richland, Ashland, Lorain, Medina, and Wayne

Mayor Explains Removal of Trees

Mayor L. Don Jones yesterday answered a letter of the Sesame club decrying the destruction of shade trees in connection with several recent municipal improvements.

In its protest, the club made specific mention of the removal of trees from South Main street near Columbia street after the street was widened and white way lights installed.

Mayor Jones pointed out that trees are not an asset in a business district, as they interfere with the efficiency of the new lights, and that the property owners generally expressed their desire to have the trees down.

Shade trees are preserved wherever possible, but cannot be let interfere with necessary improvements, the mayor pointed out.

GROCERIES GIVEN IN EXCHANGE FOR COUPONS

For a number of years we have been giving coupons with the purchase of gasoline and oil.

These coupons have been redeemd with auto accessories, lamps, silverware, clocks, etc.

Owing to the present depression we believe that our customers would prefer necessities and therefore have added certain staple groceries to our list of premiums.

SUGAR (10 lbs.) 60c (IN COUPONS)

LARD (No. 5 pail) 63c (IN COUPONS)

SALT (3 lb. bag) 10c (IN COUPONS)

A coupon worth 1 cent is given with each gallon of gasoline.

A coupon worth 1 cent is given with each quart of lubricating oil.

To comply with the state law these coupons have printed on them the fact that they have a cash surrender value of one-half cent.

In the past several years we have given many thousands of dollars worth of valuable premiums in exchange for these coupons.

It is generally conceded that this station fixes the price for gasoline in Marion.

Our price has generally been from 2 cents to 5 cents under prices charged elsewhere.

At times the major companies meet our prices here while charging higher prices elsewhere.

Whether local motorists purchase their gasoline and oil from this station or not they have benefited by the lower prices others have made to meet our prices.

Our prices are based on tank car cost plus the same profit the major companies allow their dealers.

But our prices are lower because we have eliminated the wasteful methods used by others in the form of duplicate stations and tank wagon service.

City Invites Shriners To Visit Memorial

Pilgrimage from All Parts of U. S., Canada and Mexico Urged To Pay Tribute to Only President Who Was Member of Masonic Group.

Shriners from all over the North American continent are being invited to visit Marion during the national convention in Cleveland next June.

Letters inviting convention delegations to visit the Harding memorial have been mailed to all Shrine temples in the United States, Canada and Mexico under the direction of Marion civic organizations.

Convention in June

The Shrine convention will be held at an unfixed date during the first two weeks in June. It will come on or two weeks before the formal dedication of the Harding Memorial by President Hoover June 16.

In addition to the city of Marion, the letter was sent as an invitation from six organizations the Harding Memorial association, Marion Shrine club, Chamber of Commerce, Rotary club, Kiwanis club and Federation of Womens clubs.

Persons signing the letter were Mayor L. Don Jones, Hoke Donithen, executive secretary of the memorial association, James E. Messenger, Shrine president, Karl W. Schell, head of the Chamber of Commerce, I. C. Stang, Rotary club president, Asa Queen, Kiwanian head, and Mrs. H. K. Mouser, president of the Federation of Women's clubs.

Only Shriner President

President Harding was the only Shriner ever to become president of the United States.

Several thousand Shriners are expected at the Cleveland meeting. Many of them will pass through Marion in their special trains. They are urged in the letter to visit the memorial while on their way to or returning from the convention.

The text of the letter, which was also sent to the presidents of all railroads, follows:

"The citizens of the City of Marion, most cordially invite your Official Divan, Nobles and Ladies, to stop in our city on your way to, or from, the National Shrine Convention in Cleveland.

"The Harding Memorial, one of the most beautiful structures of its kind in the world, and erected to the memory of the only Shriner who ever became President of the United States, will be officially dedicated June 16th, by President Herbert Hoover.

"Marion is located 100 miles from Cleveland, and if you can find it convenient to place Marion on your itinerary, we will be more than glad to have you spend a few hours, or, whatever time you can, with us. We will assure you of a sufficient number of automobiles to transport your party to the Memorial, over the City, and back to your train. Should you desire headquarters, the Harding Hotel and the Masonic Temple will be available.

WITH EDNA S. DUTTON

THE story of Kentucky from the time when "the French, who hunted and traded on the western waters long before the first Virginian pioneers forced their way through the dense laurel and rhododendron of the Appalachian mountains" through the years of the Civil war and after is told by Joseph Hergesheimer in his new novel, The Limestone Tree."

James Abel's cabin was on the south side of the town of Harrodstown, a short run from the fort, and his family included Sarah, James Abel's wife; Nancy, who was 16; Lucinna, newly 14; McKee, a son of 11, Bruton, a year younger; Mark, 9 and Flora, 7.

Nancy dominated the family. She was a wild looking and possessed a black temper. She could, when she willed, be very sweet and the reader discovers how easy it is for Gabriel Sash to fall in love with her. The town soon grows too cramped for Gabriel, and after their son is born he returns to his nomadic life and is heard of no more. Nancy returns to her father's cabin, where the family lives peacefully until John Abel and his wife from New Orleans arrive for a visit.

Nancy's son James spends some years fighting and when he finally decides to settle down and make a home for his little daughter Nancy the reader is somewhat surprised when he carries off Liza Rosier, who has gone to the convent, to be his second wife. Political strife in Frankfort, where James has become wealthy, results in his death, and it is Manoah Abel who carries on in his law office.

There is a love theme interwoven in the story here as well as in others parts of the novel, with Manoah and James Sash's daughter as the principals. James, however, marries a girl from the east and it is their son Elisha who holds the reader's interest in the period prior to and during the Civil war.

The climax of the novel is reached with the visit of John Dixon Folkes of Paris, who visits his father's birthplace and acquaints himself with his relatives. The young man, 19, has a superior air about himself and Kentucky suffers in comparison with his own native city. The young man comes to his real self in something of a surprise turn in the story when Gabriel Sash, now an old, old man, paints the story of his ancestors. John finds himself in love with Susan Abel and quite willing to remain in his father's country.

THERE is much of wars and the history of pioneer life in the novel, which is written in several distinct parts. The romantic side of the characters is combined with the historical episodes and there is some tragedy. The story is one not to be read piecemeal, but as a whole.

Three New Books

KEEPING up with the good novels is in itself a task at this moment in the opinion of one reviewer who ever scans the literary horizon for the best to be had on the book shelves. Three new books scanned by him in brief reviews are worth reading. They are "The Dogs," "The Forge" and "The Squire's Daughter."

"The Dogs" is a novel of the Russian revolution by Ivan Nazhivin, a former anarchist who gets along no better with the soviet and now is living in Belgium. It is a dog's-eye view of the Russian upheaval. A prince's favorite pointers, Dobrynia and Svjetiana, fine aristocrats, and a shaggy proletarian hound are the principal characters. They see a hunt and see a grand duke flick an eye from one of his hounds with a whip. Siedol goes to war, is taken prisoner, lives awhile in Germany and steals back to Russia.

"The Forge" Is Story of South

"THE FORGE" is a story of a middle-class Alabama family during the period which saw the development, the losing and the reconstruction after the war between the states. "Old Pap" Vaiden, a blacksmith, and his brood of children and slaves are full of family pride, although their poverty cannot be ignored. The author, T. S. Stribling, takes his group through love affairs, brawls, battles, good and bad fortunes, with a thoroughness and unity which demonstrates his capable skill.

Newspaperman Turns Writer of Fiction

A NEW NOVEL said by its publishers to be as modern as television, is "This Flesh," by Wythe Williams, famed as a correspondent for American newspapers during the whole of the World war. The treatment is direct, unflinching, but balanced by the art of a writer who has foregathered with such notable continental writers and artists as Remarque, Rostand, Sarah Bernhardt and Max Reinhardt. The story is a battle royal between a woman and a man, Shirley and Blake, locked in a fluctuating love struggle. The novel is published this month by Robert M. McBride company.

Writer Takes Americans To Task on Voices

HELEN HATHAWAY takes folks in America to task about their voices in her little book "What Your Voice Reveals." She blames sharp New Hampshire and Vermont winters, damp, penetrating Maine fogs, she says are hard on the delicate membranes of the throat. The "down East" farmer automatically closes his throat against them which explains the well-known Yankee twang and nasal she says. "We Americans mumble our words, mouth them, strangle them, swallow them," Miss Hathaway claims, "until the American language has sometimes been called 'unenunciated English.' "Still worse, we haven't cared. We remain deaf and indifferent to all such criticism. Now suddenly the radio and the 'talkies' are making America hear her own voice." Miss Hathaway's book is published by E. P. Dutton & Co., Inc.

In this volume Mr. Villiers writes of the thrilling old days of sail in far-off Tasmania and the South Seas. All the glamour, tragedy and hard-lived adventure of the old windjammer days is to be found in this book.

British Champ To Make Third American Start

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, March 20—Len Harvey gets his third chance tonight to show American fistic fans why he holds the British middleweight championship. He battles Ben Jeby, of the east side, in the twelve round feature bout at Madison Square garden.

Although beaten twice by Vince Dundee in his only previous American engagements Harvey has impressed the experts with his boxing ability. His chief fault, in their opinion, has been his tendency to loaf along after piling up a lead, thereby giving his opponent a chance to take away the play from him.

Interesting things are being done to simple frocks that make them equally suitable for mornings or afternoons, depending upon the fabric used. It may be developed in printed cotton or silk.

Six thousand, five hundred and twenty-five persons died by violence in New York City during 1930. The drain of civilization on human life is simply awful.

It's good to know that the $10,000,000 drought relief goal was reached this week. It estops the gloating of the President's enemies who tried so hard to defeat it.

Attacking the Hoover administration, Jouett Shouse declares that the "altitude record in peanut politics has been broken." Does Jouett refer to his present attack or some former one?

High hats have been barred for the reception to be given President Hoover when he reaches Porto Rico. The President seemingly has deliberately foregone an opportunity to view a collection of rare antiques.

On a charge of asking, receiving and accepting a $50 bribe the first day he was on the job, a federal prohibition agent was this week committed to jail in Newark, New Jersey, in default of $5,000 bail. We'll say he was a fast worker.

Washington now estimates that the fiscal year will close with a deficit of $700,000,000, even so conservative a figurer as Senator Reed Smoot predicting that it will exceed $500,000,000. Well, it's the old proposition. We can't eat our cake, and still have it.

For the third time in eleven years the whipping post was invoked in Maryland this week, a Baltimore wife-beater being sentenced to thirty days in jail and ten lashes. Even the sob-sisters will hardly have the nerve to hold that the punishment in this case isn't merited.

Lothrop Stoddard, author of "Master of Manhattan," says: "New York will not be dictated to in its manners and customs. It wants a certain amount of wine, women and song, and, willy-nilly, it's going to get them." If we get Mr. Stoddard correctly, anything is justified by a city's commitment to its sins.

Clever Scheme, If It Works.

The press of Paris has made plain through editorials and articles by naval writers that France is annoyed by the refusal of Secretary of State Stimson to fall into line with the Franco-British maneuver to force the United States to accept 23,000 tons as the maximum size of battleships, as provided in the Franco-Italian accord reached this month, and the general understanding in the inside circles in Paris is that French naval authorities hope to secure the scrapping of the London naval agreement to secure one more to their liking.

Practically all the Paris papers insist that further limitation of battleship tonnage must be accepted by all the powers, and they plainly indicate that it is the French intention to bring about some provision at the general conference next year which will make the seas safe for small powers which want to fight battles with ships of medium size.

Now the United States has sixteen battleships in excess of 23,000 tons, and ten of them are in excess of 31,000. Neither France nor Italy has any vessels to compete in size and power with these sixteen first-line ships. Italy can not afford to build vessels of their size and France is disinclined to expend the necessary money to do so; hence her plan to maneuver to get us to scrap ours and limit ourselves to 23,000-ton first-line ships, of which we haven't any. Our vessels closest to that figure are two ships of 21,000 tons, both of which are obsolete and are to be scrapped.

It's a great scheme, this of the French, but it will hardly work. That Britain may be willing to be party to it is due to the fact that she realizes that she is not financially able to build 32,000 to 35,000-ton battleships and that there would be no reason for her to do so were the United States and Japan to agree to a 23,000-ton limitation. The only class of warships in which we approach equality with Great Britain is first-line fighting vessels. Should we scrap our vessels of this class, her naval strength would be incomparably greater than ours—as well as that of any other naval power.

The United States outgeneraled itself in one naval conference, and was outgeneraled in another. It remains to be seen if this country falls for the selfish plans of the other naval powers in the general conference to be held next year.

A College "Walkout."

The matriculates of Washington and Jefferson, a college at Washington, Pennsylvania, which dates back to 1787 with a present enrollment slightly in excess of 500 and fourteen instructors, staged a walkout Wednesday as a mark of protest against Simon S. Baker, its president. A visitor had just concluded an address, to which most respectful attention was given, and Dr. Baker arose to speak whereupon the entire so-called student body arose and quietly left the hall.

It was held that Dr. Baker was unfriendly to athletics; that he did not encourage sports, worse than that, that he discouraged them, and the protest was staged as a suggestion that he resign. The doctor made plain that he had no intention of resigning, and yesterday the insurgent body either lost its nerve or came to its senses, announcing that the "walkout" would end today, the explanation of its decision to about face being that no purpose would be served by prolonging the "walkout" inasmuch as it was not intended as an act of coercion.

No matter what its purpose, the "walkout," staged under the circumstances which it was, was a deliberate personal insult to the head of the institution, and the manner in which he "called" what, in view of the body's recession from its original demand, may be called the "bluff," is refreshing.

The long-assumed purpose of college attendance is that those attending may acquire education. It is not safe to judge all colleges by this small one, of course, but it is far from unique in that those attending it seemingly place an undue estimate on the value of athletics in a college course. It used to be the rule, that boys and girls went to college to broaden their knowledge in the fields of literature and languages, history and mathematics, and to become versed in the arts and sciences. But the present trend in many cases today is to consider the social and athletic sides of college life as more important than the intellectual, a trend for which colleges are in part responsible. If the statements of many college heads are dependable, a big percentage of the boys and girls in attendance have no business there, the chief appeals of college to them being its social life, its athletic activities and freedom from home restraint. In any event, those who attend universities and colleges should be made to realize that it is not their privilege to run the institutions they may attend; that that has been committed to the college authorities, and that, if they are dissatisfied with the manner in which the institutions they enter are conducted, the way is open for them to go elsewhere. It is lack of appreciation of this which is responsible for most of the "walkouts" and "strikes" and other manifestations subversive of college work, which are so frequently recorded in the puppress, all of which are inimical to the best interests of the students really seeking education.

Navigation at the head of the lakes was formally opened Wednesday when the steamer, Winegal, cleared Duluth harbor, the earliest opening of the harbor since 1914. It has been a surprisingly moderate winter, but we up here in the North will have a hard time making our friends who went to Florida for the season believe it.

The sheriff of Erie county has found it necessary to take special precautions to prevent girl gold diggers from preying on the recipients of World war veterans' loans, and even at that some of the beneficiaries in the Ohio Soldiers and Sailors' home up in Sandusky have been separated from their money.

A Pleasing Report.

It is pleasing to read that William H. Crissy II, young Philadelphia broker, who has wagered that he can dine with President Hoover, and play golf with John D. Rockefeller, Robert Jones and the Prince of Wales, is making no progress. For a week Crissy has been registered at Ormond Beach, Florida, under an assumed name trying to ingratiate himself into Mr. Rockefeller's good graces with no success. His approach has been direct; and so have Mr. Rockefeller's refusals.

It would be very fine for Crissy, no doubt, if he were to win the wager and enjoy a tidy income from the decidedly obnoxious pursuit of making himself a pest, but for the sake of the example it would be generally pleasing were he to lose, and as disastrously as possible. If he should win, others might be encouraged to try the same stunt. The world is full of bores and pests now, and the addition of one single member to the enervating group is a prospect far from enjoyable.

Crissy plans now to go to California to pester Mr. Jones, who is engaged in moving-picture work. The hopes of some millions of Americans should have some influence in causing Mr. Jones to add his polite refusal to that of Mr. Rockefeller. The more Crissy and his kind are squelched, the happier society can be.

Will Rogers makes a point by comparing the present-day trend to stress the measuring of college and school girls with the absence of anything of the kind half a century ago. Physical development is all right in itself, but the exploitation of the persons of college and school girls on the screen and in the newspapers is not adding anything to the esteem for their sex.

The official figures show that Ruth Nichols, in her recent flight, attained an altitude of 28,743 feet, which makes her the world's champion woman altitude flier—at least until the official figures on the flight of Miss Renner over Akron are given out or some other woman's barograph beats the Nichols record by 656 feet, held necessary by the Federation Aeronautique Internationale for the making of a new record.

Marion would have no reason to complain were the new Eighth district made up of the counties of Crawford, Hancock, Hardin, Marion, Morrow, Seneca, Union and Wyandot as planned by Senator Norton, of Cleveland. By the census of last year the population of the district with the two new counties—Seneca and Union—added would be but 249,462, making it the smallest district in the state in the matter of population save three—the Fifth, Thirteenth and Twenty-Fourth.

Editorial Opinion.

HITLERISM IN ENGLAND.

The rise to prominence and influence of Germany's Herr Hitler—"Handsome Adolf"—upon his strange farrago of contradictory ideas was a sufficiently remarkable phenomenon. But an attempt by Sir Oswald Mosley to build a new party in England upon a similar hodgepodge of Fascism and Bolshevism, nationalism and economic radicalism, with a dash of the "youth movement" and a flavor of war weariness thrown in, must seem even more anomalous. One could hardly imagine an attempt more at variance with the British tradition; while moderns may recall the heavy satire which Mr. Aldous Huxley poured out upon British Fascism in his "Point Counterpoint." But in England, as in Germany, there is evidently more to it than this. Though it is difficult to take Sir Oswald and his many manifestoes very seriously, these are only surface signs of deeper fissures in the established organization of British public life.

There are some who believe that under the strains of the post-war period and the present depression the whole party system is going into dissolution. The rise of the Labor party, accompanied by no corresponding disappearance of the Liberals, wrecked political machinery which, they say, can never be made to function again. In place of a tendency toward the resurrection of the two-party system, the drift has been in the opposite direction. The Liberals have long been divided; the Conservatives have split up into the appearance of three parties—if one distinguishes Lord Rothermere's following from Lord Beaverbrook's—to say nothing of Mr. Winston Churchill, who is almost a party by himself. Sir Oswald has now fissured off from the Laborites, but has left behind him plenty of division between extremists and moderates, free traders and protectionists. It is enough to give color to the view that the old party system is dead and that England is drifting into a continental group system, with a profound modification of the whole political structure.

One may guess that whether anything like this will really happen will depend upon the duration and severity of the economic pressure to which the country is being subjected. A speech like Philip Snowden's recent demand for economy may act as a powerful political solvent. Sir Oswald's reaction to it is an extreme one, leading him to demand the abolition of parliament altogether, to demand dictatorships and policies of "action." One can hardly suppose that among the conservative and experienced British it will get him any such following as that amassed by "Handsome Adolf." But the demand remains as a sign of the strain. It is a strain which is not being taken up by existing institutions and machinery of public life. New ones might not take it up any better; but that is a consideration which has seldom prevented their appearance in times of real stress.—New York Herald Tribune.

WORDS THAT KILL.

Adolf Hitler formally disapproves of the action of some of his followers in murdering a communist leader. At the same time he will pay out of his own pocket the cost of counsel to defend them from the legal consequences of this political assassination. One can not help feeling that the contribution of the leader of the German fascists falls considerably short of what might be expected in a well-balanced mind.

Any fanatic who attracts a following by incendiary speeches invites acts of violence. The leader himself may be temperamentally incapable of clubbing to death a man who disagrees with him; but his words, working upon other temperaments, are capable of inciting such a crime. The Mormon massacre was inspired by the unbridled tongue of Brigham Young, although Young himself never intended that bloodshed should be resorted to. A good many lives have been lost in industrial disputes in this and other countries by oratory running amok.

The responsibility for the consequences of incendiary exhortations to large groups of people, which always contain irresponsible elements, can not morally be shifted to those who act upon the exhortations, whatever the legal incidence of the responsibility may be. When the chickens come home to roost, with their wings dripping with the blood of fellow human beings, a truly contrite person, who realizes that he has unloosed passions he could not control, would not seek to condone his own guilt in the matter.—Detroit Free Press.

Good Teeth Are Valuable.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

There is danger in every fad. An example is the indiscriminate extraction of teeth. This practice has led to a great deal of well-founded criticism.

It has become the common belief that most ailments can be traced to infected teeth.

There is no doubt in my mind of the importance of such infections in seeking the causes of disease. That is one thing, but the destruction of good teeth is quite another. As in the indiscriminate removal of tonsils, too many teeth have been sacrificed unnecessarily.

I can not refrain from telling you the tale of a man who had a severe pain in his foot. Upon consulting his physician, he was told that it would be necessary for him to see a surgeon. The surgeon believed he had an infection in his body and undoubtedly the appendix was the source of his infection. Thereupon the appendix was removed.

The pain in the foot still persisted. The patient again consulted the surgeon who advised extraction of all the teeth. This was done.

In spite of the removal of the appendix and all his teeth, the pain in the foot persisted. In desperation, a shoemaker was consulted, who discovered a nail in the man's shoe, and thereafter the pain disappeared.

Of course, this story is a bit far fetched. Perhaps we had better call it a fable. But, at least, it carries a warning. It is all right to remove infected teeth, but obviously good ones should be spared.

No one could advocate leaving infected teeth in the mouth. But teeth are too valuable to us to permit one to be removed unless an X-ray has been taken. If that test reveals trouble, out with the tooth. But there can be no doubt too many teeth are extracted without definite indication for their removal.

It is important that every infection in the mouth be removed. There is no hurry about it, however. Teeth should not be extracted if the infection can be removed in a different way. Usually something besides extraction can be accomplished as a result of more frequent consultations between dentist and physician.

In this way many problems can be solved. There is wisdom in an exchange of views.

Immortals of Engineering.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

There is something of the adorative instinct in man, even in the agnostic and the atheist. If the agnostic says he does not know enough to believe in God he sets up "Knowledge" as a god. If the atheist frankly denies the existence of God, he imputes to "Man" himself the attributes of a god. Images are gods we constantly are setting up, to incorporate our ideals, ambitions and loftiest aspirations. Every man has a pantheon in his own soul. Every nation has a "Hall of History," an "Academy of Immortals," a pantheon wherein stand the effigies of the men and women who represent the highest reaches of the human spirit.

Art, literature, pure science, philosophy—all have besturred themselves in the erection of such monuments to their loftiest exemplars. But hitherto applied science, as represented in engineering, has been too preoccupied with the intensive labors of making a material civilization to become self-conscious. But the time is coming, especially in this country where concrete achievement is rated so highly, when the engineer will begin to magnify his office and demand the world's obeisance to the highest of his kind.

A significant movement in this direction was recently inaugurated in this country, under the auspices of our great schools of engineering. Other heirarchies have been set up: Dante, Goethe, Moliere, Shakespeare, and others in literature; Praxiteles, Michel Angelo, Phidias, Rodin and others in sculpture; Raphael, Rubens, Rembrandt, Gainsborough and others in painting; Euclid, Achimedes, Galileo, Kepler, Newton, Einstein and others in science. Who are the greatest engineers in the history of science? Have there been great geniuses in engineering, as well as in other comprehensive fields of human activity?

The deans of American engineering schools have recently considered this question. They have been very conservative and modest in their decision, choosing only five names. These are: Leonardo da Vinci, James Watt, Ferdinand de Lesseps, James B. Eads, Thomas A. Edison. These men belong to modern times, with the exception of Da Vinci, who was modern in his outlook and vision. Singularly enough, Archimedes is omitted from the list—probably because his reputed engineering feats, which were extraordinary if true, rest largely upon legendary accounts, and have no tangible evidence to support them. This, however, is no proof that these legends or historical accounts are false. It is merely unwise, and indeed unscientific, for scientists to base their decision upon unproved statements.

Aside from originality, genius and accomplishment, these five men were all conspicuous for indefatigable labor and severe application. They all serve as impressive examples of what mighty things can be accomplished by genius, reinforced by ambition, courage and energy.—Copyright, 1931, International Feature Service, Inc.

Cheesedom.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

New York and Wisconsin now lead among the American states in the production of cheeses, though Ohio produces a considerable volume, and there was a time when Portage and Geauga counties were so largely engaged in cheese making that the territory was often referred to as "Cheesedom."

Settled by Connecticut people originally, many of them brought with them to their western homes technical and practical knowledge of the art of making cheese. The soil being adapted to grazing, the country afforded a good place for this industry to take root. As early as 1820 Henry Baldwin, of Portage county, made a shipment of cheeses from that county. Hauling 2,000 pounds by wagon to Beaver Point, Pennsylvania, he loaded it into a small boat and floated it down the river, selling portions at Wheeling, Marietta and Cincinnati, and closing out at Louisville.

The outlook being good, he associated with himself Samuel T. Taylor and A. White, buying the product of several dairies and sending the cheese down the river to be sold. The partnership continued several years. In 1826 Royal Taylor and R. G. McCarty bought thirty tons of cheese in these counties and went with it down the Ohio to sell it as before. McCarty took part of it to Alabama, where it sold readily. Taylor took the rest to Nashville, but found the market glutted, and was forced to peddle it by wagon through eastern Tennessee and Kentucky. He finally disposed of it all, but was six and a half months in doing it.

It was not until 1836 that the northern Ohio cheese product began to have competition from southern Ohio, and a market must be sought elsewhere. Apparently this was done, for the volume of Cheesedom produce slowly, but steadily, increased until, in 1887, it was almost 2,000,000 pounds. At the same time, however, the production of butter there had risen to 1,000,000 pounds. The dairies were diversifying their products and they have further done so in great ways, as the large cities have enlarged their demands for milk, but much cheese is still made in Portage and Geauga counties.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. M'INTYRE.

New York, March 20—Thoughts while stirring: Who remembers when walnuts were cracked on the bottom of flatirons? Oscar Perkins' name combines Mayfair with a touch of the backwoods. All mirror stocking stores with ravishingly beautiful sales girls. And that hilarious clown, Dr. Rockwell.

Thyra Samter Winslow, a Fort Smith, Arkansas, girl, who made good in the city called Benny, so nonchalant on the stage, looks it off. The wealthy salesman of advertising blotters who has backed several shows. David Belasco's far-away look. A window of fine wire-haired puppies.

Those chunky pugilists with smacked noses, lumpy ears and thin tenor voices. Actors who sit in the front row at the Palace on Sunday nights. A musical comedy wants three adagio dancers. Rookie "dese, dem and dose" cops. The late Jimmy Hussey coined "Oh, Nerts!"

Former "jungle buzzards," who now play the bread lines. And ex-magistrates who used to wear paper hats and pound clappers in the night clubs. German kitchens featuring apple strudel. Associated Writers, Inc. They will write anything, any time, on any subject. Hooray!

The Santa Claus types who work in the clothes mending shop on Sixth avenue. Judith Anderson. Who remembers the old parlor game "Red Rover?" Grover Whalen without a gardenia. Just a few years ago Jimmy Durante was "Rag Time Jimmy" of the Coney beer halls. Isabelle Leighton.

Few artists paint the real American girl as well as McClelland Barclay. They will soon be hanging the screen kitchen doors out yonder. I'm still twittery over that story I heard last night. Three men of high standing in an English village saw a man in the road vanish in thin air.

Maybe they did it with mirrors. Marie Cahill as chipper as a flapper. Knobby dressers in all black. Helen Gould's home is the only brown stone front left on the avenue. Overheard: "She married, but I'll catch her on the rebound." What became of rock candy on a string?

Paris ran a temperature this winter over a female impersonator at the Cirque Medrano. He was known as Barbette and came from a whistle stop in Texas—of all places. His entrance was preceded by a band and he appeared in a costume composed of fifty pounds of ostrich plumes. He neither sings nor dances but merely glides gracefully and slowly down a long carpeted white stairway, a la Dolores.

It was interesting to catch a close-up of an experiment in Broadway's deftest art—gold-digging—at the theater last night. They sat directly in front. He was a heavy-lidded yegg of the flesh—bald, fat, phlegmatic. She was a cherry-lipped baby talker—the type who replies to every remark with a simper and a snuggle. In the play appeared a beautiful lady swathed in a gorgeous ermine. "Daddy," cooed the gold-digger, "babykins want pretty coat like booful lady." He pretended not to hear and she repeated. And all through the play she would entreat with such lispings as: "Does babykins get pretty coat?" "Will Daddum make babykins very happy?"—and so on ad nauseum. The happy ending was revealed out front after the play. Calling to a member of her glossily bright sisterhood from a limousine step she trilled: "I won't be able to see you tomorrow, Mildred. I'm looking at ermine coats." Babykins won. They usually do.

A Washington Daybook.

BY HERBERT PLUMMER.

Washington, March 20—The quiet and dignity of the executive offices at the White House came very near being disturbed by a moose call the other day—and gossip has it that only the quick thinking of the President himself saved the situation.

Senator Gould, of Maine, an ardent salmon fisherman, took four guides of the Canadian woods to the White House to meet the President. They wanted to extend to him an invitation to come to New Brunswick and fish in the Miramachi and Restigouche rivers.

The President greeted them in the office of Lawrence Richey, one of his secretaries. The guides had brought moccasins for Mrs Hoover, a miniature birch bark canoe, a silver mounted moose hoof for Mr. Hoover, and a quantity of moose meat for the White House table.

After the introductions and presentation formalities were over, one of the guides produced a moose horn.

"Now, Mr. President," he said, "I will show you how we call moose in the Canadian woods."

And as the story goes that just as the blast was about to reverberate through the stately executive offices, the President reached for the horn and said something to the effect that he would be content merely to examine the instrument.

The guide surrendered the horn to the presidential hands.

Incidentally the moose meat found its way to the White House dinner table, and the silver mounted hoof inscribed, "Presented to President Hoover by the New Brunswick Government—Canada's Unspoiled Province," will be used as an ash tray.

Senator "Puddler Jim" Davis is proud of the fact that he is a Welshman. He has sung Welsh songs over the radio. He is fond of quoting Welsh proverbs and bits of Welsh dialect to his friends.

So it was that when the anniversary of St. David, patron saint of Wales, rolled around, the senator arose on the floor of the senate to pay his tribute. More interested, perhaps, were his colleagues in the pronunciation feats he performed than in the text of his speech.

Eyes of senators opened in amazement and anxiety clouded the faces of the reporters in the debates, when "Puddler Jim" announced:

"From Llanfairpwllgwyngyllgogerychwyrndrobwllllandysiliogogogoch in the north to Pentllanfraith in the south, many a toast and many a time-honored song will be offered to the memory of valiant St. David."

And not once did he falter.

45th Anniversary of Mission Group Celebrated Here

The forty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the Woman's Foreign Missionary society of the Prospect Street M. E. church and the sixty-third anniversary of the founding of the world society, were celebrated in a founder's day program last evening at the Prospect Street church.

The Little Light Bearers and King's Heralds, auxiliaries of the society, participated in the program. More than 100 members of the society and church were present.

Mrs. Frank Mayer, one of the few remaining charter members of the local society, conducted the devotional service. Mrs. George Bechtle was program chairman and piano accompanist, and Mrs. Karl W. Patow, Mrs. A. Schrader, Miss Frieda Wanner and Miss Mamie Hecker were hostesses.

A song, "Founder's Day," opened the program. A founder's day reading by Miss Lena Chalfant was followed by a vocal duet, "Follow Me," sung by Ruth and Warren Patow, representing the King's Heralds and Little Light Bearers. Rheumatism Goes Swollen Joints Vanish

How To End Rheumatism in Less Than a Week

If you suffer from torturing rheumatic pains, sore muscles or stiff inflamed joints, it's because your system is full of the dangerous poisons that cause rheumatism and make thousands helpless. What you need is RU-MA, and need it right now.

RU-MA acts on the blood, stomach, kidneys and liver, and drives the dangerous rheumatic poisons from the system through the natural channels of elimination — it eases pain the first day.

You must use an internal medicine to free the joints and muscles of crippling stiffness, soreness and torturing pain. That's why RU-MA succeeds while external remedies and pain deadening drugs give only temporary relief.

Henney & Cooper says no matter what kind of rheumatism you have, or how long you have suffered, try RU-MA—it must completely end all rheumatic agony or you get your money back.—Adv.

ty-fourth anniversary of Grover Cleveland's birthday. Governor Roosevelt of New York praised his "rugged honesty."

The best thing about Cleveland was his belief in the United States and its ability to manage its own affairs. Nobody in England would have said to him: "Send somebody over here, and we shall tell you what kind of ships and how many you may build."

MONEY GOES to New York and stays. Borrowing in Wall street was very easy yesterday. "Call loans" could be had in the street for 1 per cent, 1½ per cent on the Stock Exchange. If you wanted money for 90 days you could borrow it for 2 per cent.

There is plenty of money, plenty of raw material, plenty of idle labor. The difficulty is to bring the three together profitably. That takes action and business genius.

IT IS GLOOMY to see men, shackled to prevent escape, at work on highways in various states. You feel that the iron rings on their ankles are on yours, and the weight on their hearts on yours.

There was nothing gloomy about five shackled men with their guard on the outskirts of Atlanta when the convicts saw a house on fire.

The five men aroused the inmates, led them to safety, then worked in the thick smoke, saving household furniture until driven out by flames.

There is little difference in the hearts of men. The difference is in heredity, environment, opportunity.

CORRECT REPORT

Through an erroneous announcement a change was reported in the place for presenting the oratorio "Elijah" to be given by the Morrow County Choral society Sunday night. The program will be given in the Methodist church at Mt. Gilead as originally planned and not at Cardington.

When You CAN'T QUIT

A headache is often the sign of fatigue. When temples throb it's time to rest. If you can't stop work, you can stop the pain. Bayer Aspirin will do it, every time. Take two or three tablets, a swallow of water, and carry-on—in comfort.

Don't work with nerves on edge or try all day to forget a nagging pain that aspirin could end in a jiffy! Genuine aspirin can't harm you; just be sure it's Bayer.

In every package of Bayer Aspirin are proven directions for headaches, colds, sore throat, neuralgia, neuritis, etc. Carry these tablets with you, and be prepared. To block a sudden cold on the street-car; quiet a grumbling tooth at the office; relieve a headache in the theatre; spare you a sleepless night when nerves are "jumping."

And no modern girl needs "time out" for the time of month! Bayer Aspirin is an absolute antidote for periodic pain.

Take Bayer Aspirin for any ache or pain, and take enough to end it. It can't depress the heart. That is medical opinion. That is why it is only sensible to insist on the genuine tablets that bear the Bayer cross. The pocket tin is a convenient size. The bottle of 100 tablets is most economical to buy.

HOT FEET GIVEN CHANCE TO COOL

Dance Marathon Stops When Druggist Sues for Bunion Pad Bill.

Nora Terhune of Marion and other dancers in the marathon which has been under way near Columbus since last December were seeking other means of livelihood this morning, following an abrupt halt of the contest last night.

Corn and bunion pads and other ingredients used to soothe hot feet, indirectly caused abandonment of the marathon, according to Associated Press dispatches today.

The marathon was declared off after the Tobias Drug Co. had entered suit against the dance hall and Gus Snyder for $275.50, alleged due for corn and bunion pads and foot lotions supplied the dancers.

It was said some cash settlement was made with the seven couples still on the floor.

Miss Terhune entered the Columbus dance shortly after competing in a similar contest at Crystal Lake park here last fall.

ANOTHER SHIP GONE

One of Viking Fleet Sinks; Crew Escapes Safely.

By The Associated Press

ST. JOHNS, N. F., March 20 — The motor sealer Sir William, one of the fleet of which the wrecked sealer Viking was a member, sank 15 miles northeast of Horse Island this morning, according to advices received here. The crew reached the steamship Eagle in safety. They fired the ship before leaving her so that she would not become a derelict and a menace to navigation.

Five miles away, the rescue ship Sagona, with the survivors of the Viking disaster aboard, prepared to leave later today for St. John's. Heavy gales were blowing with snow in the vicinity of Horse Island.

NO TRACE OF MISSING

Further Search Useless, Is Opinion of Sealer Captains.

By The Associated Press

ST. JOHNS, N. F., March 20—Captains of sealing vessels reported to St. Johns today that they had searched every foot of ice within 22 miles of the scene of the Viking disaster without finding a trace of the 28 men still missing. They declared further search useless.

Air expeditions, it was felt here, would needlessly endanger the lives of fliers, and would accomplish nothing.

All except the most seriously injured of the 127 survivors had been transferred from Horse Island to the sealer Sagona today.

In an official tabulation by Sir Richard Squires, prime minister of New Foundland, today, the premier said the ship carried a signed crew of 147, four members of the motion picture expedition headed by Varick Frissell, two stowaways and two men who had joined the ship but were not listed on the ship's articles, making a total of 155.

"own reasons" for his designs and refused to implicate others.

Assistant County Prosecutor George Hargreaves announced the investigation now would be directed to learn whether the Communist party or its members were involved, or whether Kassay "merely took it upon himself to further the cause of internationalism by making a martyr of himself."

Pleads Not Guilty

"Kassay pleaded not guilty when he was arraigned in municipal court here today on a charge of criminal syndicalism. He asked no bond and none was set. He will be given a preliminary hearing tomorrow.

Kassay came here last June as a highly paid mechanical expert and began exhorting his fellow workers to sabotage, department of justice agents said.

County and federal officials stated Kassay told them he was a Communist, but would not discuss his connections. He engaged in Communist uprisings in Hungary after the war and admitted being arrested there, McDermott said. At his home was found a quantity of communistic literature, a number of letters in a foreign language and evidence that he had burned papers.

Deny Craft Is Damaged

Government and Goodyear Zeppelin Corporation officials denied any damage had been done to the Akron. Lieut. T. G. Settle, inspector of the naval aircraft, and Dr. Karl Arnstein, vice president and chief engineer of the Zeppelin Corporation, asserted every part of the ship, including the 6,500,000 rivets, are double inspected by the navy and the company with microscopes and that the tiniest flaw would have been discovered immediately.

They ridiculed any belief that one man alone could have carried out sabotage successfully.

Investigators revealed they became suspicious some time ago when a heavy iron bar mysteriously dropped from the top of the framework.

The Akron, which will be the largest lighter-than-air craft in the world, is being rushed into completion. The tail, 50 feet in diameter, was hoisted into place only yesterday and extra crews of workmen have been added. It will have a capacity of 6,500,000 cubic feet of gas and will be 780 feet long and 130 feet through.

PROSECUTION HIT IN MURDER TRIAL

Physician Testifies to Belief That Mrs. Bowles Killed Self.

By The Associated Press

HILLSBORO, Ore., March 20—Testimony of a physician that he believed Mrs. Nelson C. Bowles committed suicide has registered a blow for the defense in the murder trial of her husband, A Portland millionaire, and Irma G. Loucks, his sweetheart.

Dr. Frank C. Menne, coroner's physician and a defense witness, said autopsy findings convinced him Mrs. Bowles, stabbed fatally in Miss Loucks' apartment Nov. 12, killed herself.

He testified the wound was horizontal, which he said was usual in self-inflicted wounds; the point of the knife had gone obliquely downward in the natural arc of the arm of a right-handed person; the wound was cleancut and he found on Mrs. Bowles' body no sign of a struggle.

The physician said a wound inflicted by another person was likely to be somewhat perpendicular and jagged.

The state's final witness was Dr. H. C. Miller, physician and foreman of the coroner's jury that accused Bowles and Miss Loucks of murder. Dr. Miller testified he had observed bruises on Mrs. Bowles' arms.

Motion for a direct verdict of acquittal was filed by the defense when the state rested. It was to be acted on today.
